

KINGSWOOD OXFORD

Upper School Physics Teacher
Kingswood Oxford School
West Hartford, CT

Start date: August 2024

Kingswood Oxford is seeking an Upper School Physics teacher who is passionate, innovative, and collaborative – an educator who models a growth mindset and is committed to equity-focused pedagogy. In addition to having a strong educational background and teaching experience in Physics, successful candidates will be technologically savvy, have experience with curriculum design, and model best teaching practices. Candidates should also understand the importance of involvement in the community, student engagement and empowerment, ongoing professional development, and authentic collaboration with other faculty and staff to advance the school's mission and strategic vision. On the whole, optimal teaching candidates at Kingswood Oxford will show the following traits:

- Collaborative: works well with others, pitches in, pushes others in their practice
- Curious: about their subject, students, the world, teaching and learning; approaches new ideas with openness rather than judgment
- Innovative: excited to try new things, willing to fail; excited to offer students agency and choice
- Joyful: likes kids; enjoys being with students, sees their potential, works to understand how they operate
- Self-aware: clear how they set the weather in the classroom; engages in the continuous practice of self-knowledge to create equitable/inclusive learning communities

Curricularly, successful candidates should have a background in teaching high school Physics. The position involves multiple parts:

- Teaching 4 or 5 classes in Physics
- Coaching/co-curricular duties for one season or the equivalent
- Advising a small group of students

These duties will be determined in discussion with the Department Chair, the Director of Athletics, and the Head of the Upper School.

Located in West Hartford, Connecticut, Kingswood Oxford is a coeducational, independent day school for motivated students in grades 6-12.
